“Every year Reb Avrahamle Cherchanover would buy a new copy of “kinot” for Tisha B'Av. After Tisha B'Av, he would put it away, saying, ‘Since Messiaich is coming this year, we won't need to say kinot again next year.’”

Why Would a 21st Century Jew Observe Tisha B'Av?

*Eikhah! How can it be – that she sat alone,
the city so great / so swelled with people?
She was like a widow.*

*The one great among the nations,
ministering among the states,
became a slave caste.*

—Translation by Rabbi David Seidenberg

And so begins the book of Eicha, Lamentations, the scroll that is read on Tisha B'Av.

More like poetry than prose, this scroll cries out with the inconsolable grief felt by those who witnessed the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem. Eicha speaks of a grief known to people who have lost all, or most of the things that they value and that bring them joy.

Young men must carry millstones, and youths stagger under loads of wood. The old men are gone from the gate, the young men from their music. Gone is the joy of our hearts; our dancing is turned into mourning. (5:12b-14)*

Like many who have experienced illness or loss, the writer tries to make sense of a devastating situation – ‘Why has God done this to us?’ ‘Why me?’ ‘If God truly cares about us, how could God let this happen? Like those who have experienced loss, feelings of loneliness, despair and hopelessness pervade the author's thinking. If prayer helped him before, it does no good now. God seems to have abandoned him. His only hope is to figure out why he is afflicted and then find a solution.

אני הגבר ראה עני

I am the man who has known affliction... (3:1)

He has made me dwell in darkness... (3:6)

And when I cry and plead, He shuts out my prayer (3:8)

The answer offered is not an answer that I find comforting, but is an answer that a person who believes in God's absolute omnipotence might find helpful:

נחנו פשענו ומרינו אתה לא סלחת:

*We have transgressed and rebelled, and
You have not forgiven (3:42)*

The author suggests that the people have sinned and therefore their punishment is national and personal destruction

TBE WELCOMES DOV GOLDBERG, INTERIM RELIGIOUS PROFESSIONAL

The Temple Beth El Board of Directors is pleased to welcome Dov Goldberg as our Interim Religious Professional. Mr. Goldberg comes to us from Temple Israel of Great Neck, New York, where he served as the Director of the Waxman High School and Youth House.

While at Temple Beth El, Dov will serve our congregation as the Principal of our Hebrew School, in addition to helping lead services and give pastoral care. Dov comes to us with 19 years of experience in the field of Jewish education. He has served as the Dean of Residential Life at American Hebrew Academy in Greensboro, North Carolina; the Director of Altshuler Akiva Academy and the Maimonides School of Jewish Studies in Youngstown Ohio; and Educational Director of Beth Israel Congregation in Ann Arbor, Michigan and Congregation B'nai Tikvah in North Brunswick, New Jersey. Dov also served as Hazzan for eight years while at Congregation B'nai Tikvah.

Please join us for a welcome reception following the 5:30 PM Shabbat services on Friday, August 15.

BACK IN NORTHERN NEW ENGLAND

by Dov Goldberg, Interim Religious Professional

There is a Hebrew saying kol hatchalot kashot – all beginnings are difficult. And while it may be true that unpacking is not all that fun and starting a new job usually has a steep learning curve, that's not what stands out for me as I reflect on the less than two weeks since I arrived in Portland. Over and over again what has been so apparent is the warmth of the welcome I've received from everyone at Beth El, and in fact, throughout the Portland area. I'm looking forward to the coming year as I get to know you and, God willing, have the opportunity to spend many wonderful times with you. I'm excited about learning and sharing Judaism with the students, teachers and parents in the Hebrew School. And I am eager to assist Rabbi Braun and the Ritual Committee with the important spiritual and pastoral work they do.

In the article above, there is a brief description of some of my past professional experiences. I know that as the year progresses we'll learn more about each other, so I'll skip the long recitation of my personal and professional background. But, I will share with you how special it is for me to be back in northern New England. I was born and raised in Rutland, Vermont where my father served as rabbi for over 40 years. There is something unique about this corner of the country and though I have lived in many different communities I have always felt that while you can take the boy out of New England you can't take New England out of the boy. In so many ways being at Beth El and in Portland feels like coming home. Thank you for opening your community and your hearts to me. I look forward to being enriched by living and learning Torah with you and hope that in return, in some small way, I will be able to touch your lives for the better.

Nathan Finberg Bar Mitzvah

Please join Melissa and Stephen Finberg in celebrating the Bar Mitzvah of their son, Nathan Finberg, on August 29-30 2008.

Nathan is an 8th grader at Lyman Moore Middle School. He enjoys soccer, soccer and more soccer! He plays soccer for Lyman Moore, PAYSA travel, and Maine Metro Premier. Nathan also enjoys watching basketball, baseball and football; reading informational books; and hanging out with friends and family. He is looking forward to celebrating his Bar Mitzvah.

Tisha B'Av: August 9 on the Eastern Prom

We will celebrate Havdallah, hear Eicha (the scroll of Lamentations), listen to poetry, and say Kaddish.

All are welcome.

NEW OPPORTUNITIES FOR ADULT LEARNING!

Mark your calendars for an exciting season of Politics ... History ... Philosophy... And the movies!

This fall, the Adult Jewish Learning Committee is offering an exciting lineup of classes and programs at Temple Beth El. You won't want to miss any of these fascinating learning opportunities:

■ Candidates Forum:

Meet the candidates at Temple Beth El on Sunday morning, Sept. 28, from 9:30 to 11:30 AM, when Irwin Gratz, host of MPBN's "Morning Edition," moderates a discussion by Maine's candidates for the U.S. Senate and the House of Representatives.

■ A Guide to Living

Dr. Sanford Freedman, Associate Professor of Literature at Bates College, will lead us through the soon-to-be-published book, Four Jewish Philosophers: A Guide to Living, by Harvard philosopher Hilary Putnam (with whom Dr. Freedman studied). We will focus especially on the lives and ideas of Martin Buber, Franz Rosenzweig, Emmanuel Levinas, and Ludwig Wittgenstein. Classes are Sunday afternoons, September 14, 21, and 28, with one or two more classes in October.

■ Visions of Jerusalem

Dr. Stephanie Gerber Wilson, assistant director of the Schusterman Center for Israel Studies at Brandeis University, examines the role of Jerusalem in Israeli identity. Her program, "Visions of Jerusalem: Imagining the Past and Claiming the Future," will be on Sunday, Nov. 9th, 2-4 PM.

■ TBE Night at the Movies

Join us for an entertaining and inspiring evening, Saturday, Nov. 15th. We will begin with Havdalah, followed by a screening of a classic Jewish film, and discussion afterwards. Desserts and popcorn will be served. 🍿

The Great Sukkah Raffle

The Adult Jewish Learning committee is raffling off a brand new Sukkah again this year. This easy to assemble, pre-fab Sukkah (retail value $500) measures 6 x 8 feet and will accommodate a table and chairs for as many as eight adults. It also comes complete with a schach (roof cover). Plus, the winner and two runners-up will receive a traditional Lulav and Etrog! Tickets for the drawing are $10 each or 3 for $25. You can sign up at the Temple office (flyers will also be available on the entry table) or send your name, address, and phone number along with the number of tickets you wish to purchase and a check to TBE. All ticket requests should reach the office no later than Friday, September 19.

RECENT BOARD ACTIONS

■ Committee Authorized to begin

Reconfiguration Search: At the July 15 meeting of the Board of Directors, the Board completed its review of the Reconfiguration Committee's recommendations regarding alternative religious professional staffing models, and included in this review an analysis of the cost of each of the Committee's proposed models. The Board voted unanimously to authorize the commencement of a search for 1.5 full time equivalent religious professionals. The Board voted to provide the Search Committee with the flexibility to consider a variety of scenarios. The Search Committee will seek applications from rabbis, cantors and Jewish educators and from the pool of qualified candidates will then determine which candidate(s) have the most appropriate skill set to assist Rabbi Braun with the educational, liturgical, and pastoral needs of our synagogue. The Board will have the opportunity to vote on any recommended hiring before offers of employment are extended. We plan to have this new Search Committee in place this summer with the goal of having new hires in place by July 1, 2009. We will provide you with updates as the Search Committee's work progresses.

R I C K F I N B E R G

■ Membership Dues Remain Level: On June 24th, the Board voted to keep dues at the same level for the third year in a row. While we expect this to be a tight budgetary year as some of our synagogue's expenses have increased (including but not limited to our energy costs), we have done our best to keep expenses to a minimum because we understand that every TBE member is feeling the pinch of rising living expenses. To balance our budget, we will need a strong Annual Campaign this fall to match or exceed the successful campaign we had last year. Please support that annual appeal at whatever level

Temple Beth El Annual Meeting: Volunteer Awards and New Board Members

by Liz Rose-Cohen

On Tuesday, May 27, the Board of Directors held its Annual Meeting of the membership. Approximately 60 people gathered to welcome those members who have joined this year, thank volunteers who have given above and beyond, swear in new board members, and enjoy delicious ice cream sundaes prepared by Phyl Rubinstein.

This year's Eleanor Merdek Volunteer of the Year Award went to Judy Gatchell, whose service to the Temple Beth El community is unmatched. With no one to assist the Rabbi in leading services this year, Temple Beth El's Ritual Committee, which Judy chairs, set the goal of increasing lay participation in Torah reading and service leading. As a result of Judy's good natured recruiting, encouraging, and cajoling of the Torah readers, Temple Beth El has had a banner year for lay participation in service leading. We are a better community for her persistence. In addition, Judy served as one of the Board Vice Presidents, as Co-Chair of the Interim Search Committee, and as a member of the Reconfiguration Committee. Past recipients of the Merdek Award are: Tom Berman, Linda Jacobs, and Olivia Solodar.

In addition to the Merdek Award, the following members received Honorable Menschen Awards for their service to the Temple Beth El community: Barbara Peisner, for her work as chair of the Tikkun Olam Committee; Anita Bernhardt for overseeing the Congregational focus groups and survey, and for her ongoing leadership on the Hebrew School Committee; Hedy Cohen for her work on the Ritual Committee and High Holiday Honors Committee; Paul Muscat for his ongoing leadership of the Annual Appeal, participation in the Ritual Committee and Interim Search Committee, and voluminous Torah reading; Ellie Miller for chairing the Reconfiguration Committee and extensive Torah reading; Joy Krinsky for donating her graphic design skills whenever asked and for her work on the Reconfiguration Committee; Nancy Levinsky for running the Jewish Book Fair and organizing the spirit-filled Hebrew School Talent Show; Karen Hindall for her participation in the Hebrew School Committee, many hours in the kitchen, and willing fingers for collating mailings; Ginny Squires Eklund for her work welcoming new members as the Shalom Committee chair and commitment to the Youth Commission; Barbara Epstein and Elaine Lewis for countless hours editing the Morning Minyan service book; and, Lynn Goldfarb and Fran Jacobson for spearheading many aesthetic improvements in our building; and Tom and Ellen Froncek for their thoughtful work as co-chairs of the Adult Jewish Learning Committee.

Finally, the Annual Meeting marks the end of one Board year and the beginning of another. This year we thanked Jon Freedman, Bruce Ruben, and Gil Dichter who are ending their service on the Board. In addition, Board President, Rick Finberg, acknowledged Linda Jacobs for her many years of service as the Board's Treasurer; Linda will remain on the Board but has passed her treasurer's hat on to Jon Brier. Rabbi Braun led the induction ceremony for five TBE members who will join the Board this year; they are: Merrill Abramson, Adam Arens, Joy Krinsky, Barbara Peisner, and Fae Silverman. The new Board begins the year with much on its plate, not the least of which will be deciding on a new Religious Professional Configuration and conducting a national search to fill the positions.

tion and pain. When the people discover their sins, they will repent and all their ills will be taken away. On that day, God will again take them in and care for them and all will be well. The pain that is so keenly felt can be controlled through a better relationship with God – a task that can be achieved.

Even though the language and emotion of Eicha is beautiful, and the melody used to chant the words are both awesome and haunting, why would a 21st century Jew observe Tisha B'Av? Do we really see the destruction of the Temple as a catastrophe? Do we really believe that God controls the political sphere (the expansion of the Roman Empire) and that God would treat us so harshly?

The destruction of the Temple – and with it a form of biblical Judaism is only one way to think of the observance of Tisha b'Av. Another reason is the way it models a Jewish approach to disaster. We do not sit alone, but rather with community as we recall and mourn devastating events that have occurred over history. Like many mourning rituals, there is comfort sitting with friends while we ponder events that are overwhelmingly horrible. I remember listening to Rabbi Irwin Kula chanting the final words of passengers from the airplane that crashed in Pennsylvania on September 11st to the melody of Eicha. I wondered if the Jews in exile who listened to the words of Eicha also felt a lump in their throat and feelings of helplessness and despair as I did when I heard the passenger's messages. I wondered if they, too, found comfort being with community at such a difficult time.

Perhaps another reason to observe is to remind us that even if we are relatively comfortable, this is still a broken world in need of repair, and we need to take notice of it. One Rabbinic story teaches that the reason the Temple was destroyed was because one Jew treated another Jew with contempt. Tisha B'Av and its liturgy reminds us of the sanctity of life – of all life. It reminds us just how destructive hatred and bitterness can be. It reminds us of homelessness, of loss, of exile, and the effects of poverty.

*My being melts away
over the ruin of my poor people,
as babes and sucklings languish
in the squares of the city.
They keep asking their mothers,
'Where is bread and wine?'
as they languish like battle-wounded in the squares of the town (2:11b-12a)*

Perhaps on this one day, when we recall all the terrible events that have happened to the Jewish people, we can be moved to action. We can do something about the atrocities taking place in many areas of the world. We can increase the amount of food and clothing we bring to the Temple so that others may share our wealth. We can organize, we can cry out, we can vote in ways that may bring a moment of peace where there is violence.

As we chant the book of Eicha, as we listen to the readings, as we look over the Casco Bay – past the Headlight and towards the Atlantic Ocean, may we be moved to work for a better world.

May you have an easy fast.

Rabbi Braun

you are able. Though we may very well need to consider a modest increase in dues next year, the Board was pleased to be able to approve a budget that held the line this year.
